AIR is one of the world’s leading non-profit organizations dedicated to conducting and applying the best behavioral and social science research to improve the lives of those who are disadvantaged. AIR’s Health and Social Development program is dedicated to promoting youth and family health and well-being by strengthening the many systems that serve them: public health, health care, mental health, child welfare, juvenile justice, homeless shelters, and education.

Work with a team of experienced justice researchers on a variety of projects!

Responsibilities may include:

- Conducting literature reviews
- Managing multi-site research database
- Involvement in document reviews, focus groups, interviews, and observational studies

Work with data from the US Census, Community crime data from the National Incident Based Reporting System (NIBRS), as well as local data from individual courts and communities.

Internship Details:
Georgetown Location
Fourteen weeks
10 to 20 hours weekly
Unpaid but can obtain Academic Credit

To apply contact USG Career & Internship Services Center at 301-738-6338 or usgcareerservices@umd.edu